Manage your company training plan

Altamira Learning supports companies in the creation of their training plan, both from the educational as well as logistical and financial standpoints.
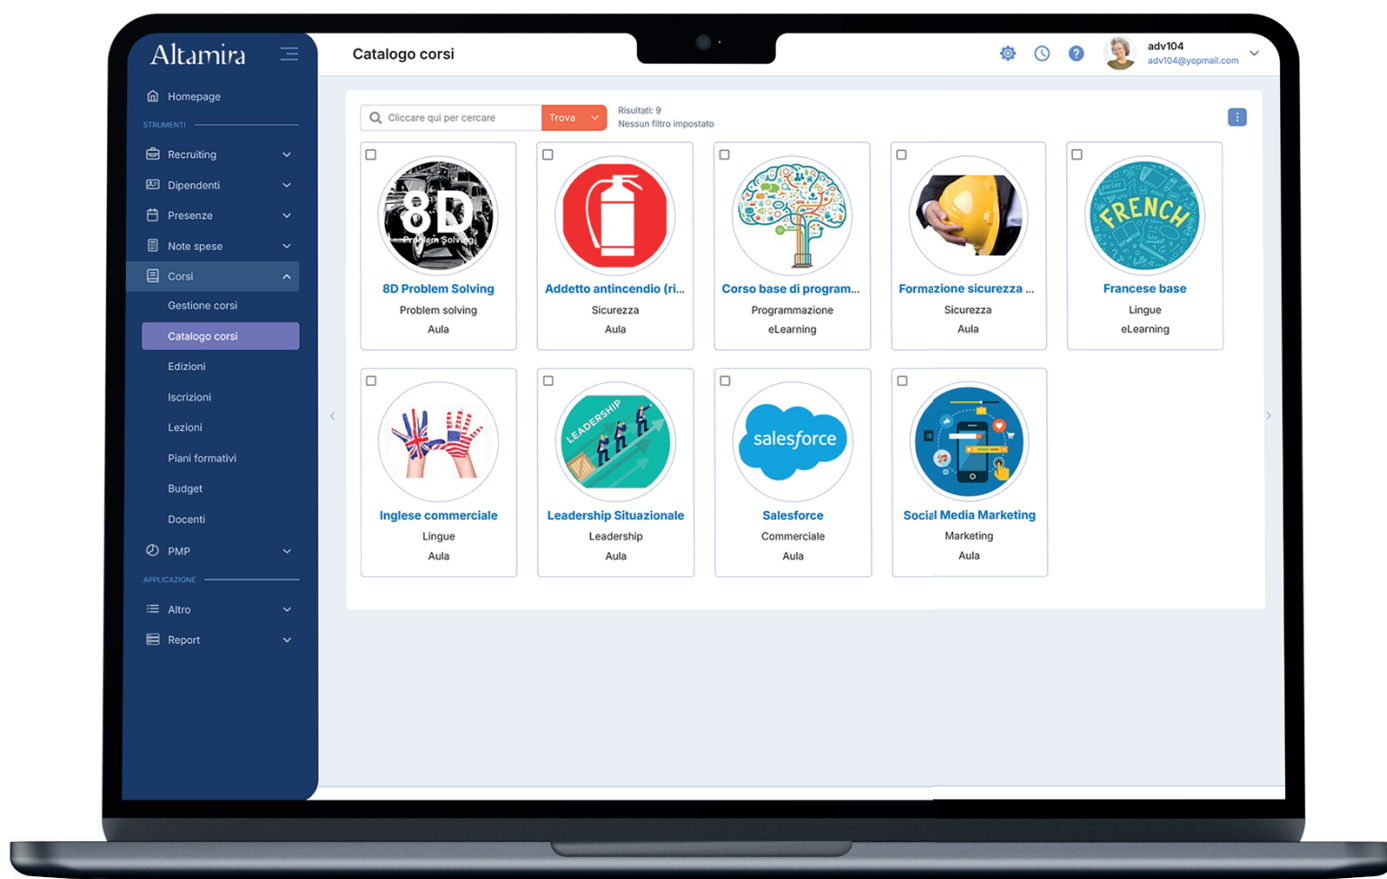

Create your course catalog

Create a rich catalog of courses for your personnel deliverable in person, online, or through blended learning.

Each course can include two or more recurring sessions per year, allowing new hires and employees who need to develop specific skills to participate promptly.

Plan your courses in detail

The fully customizable templates for the creation and management of courses allow companies to communicate a considerable amount of information. The start and end date, the course length, the deadline for registration, the institution or expert providing the training, and the total and per person cost are just some of the many customizable details available.

Plan your class schedule

The course can be scheduled directly through the platform, as the user-friendly interface allows users to view and edit the calendar throughout the year. Once again, the level of details customizable on the platform is astonishing.

Deliver content directly on the platform

Not all training courses are carried out in person, especially following the spread of hybrid work.

Altamira Learning enables companies to deliver their learning content directly on the platform with online learning. Several formats are supported, including video.

Track attendance, exams, and evaluations

Altamira Learning allows companies to track course attendance and organize exams and evaluations to monitor each employee's advancement.

This way, the skills acquired are attributed only to those who have consistently attended the training and passed the final evaluation.

Involve teachers and trainers

Altamira Learning is a cloud-based software with self-service access available to all employees. Internal and external trainers can also be granted partial access to the platform, significantly reducing the HR workload. Teachers will have access to their courses, where they'll be able to manage enrollment, track attendance, give evaluations, etc.

Develop your employees' skills

The main goal of a company's training program is to improve its employee development. Likewise, skill development is the starting point and core focus of the courses organized through Altamira Learning.

Each training aims to introduce or improve a particular skill, all while monitoring attendance and employees' improvements.
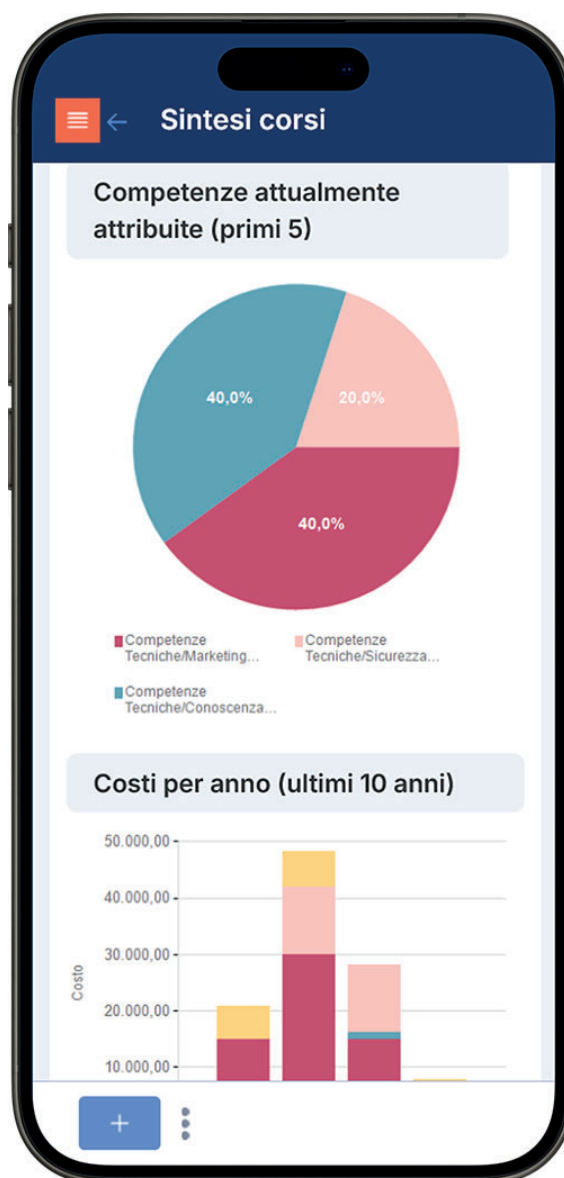

Comply with mandatory training

With our software, you can rest assured that all mandatory training that your company is required to provide has been successfully carried out.

Organize your data and generate reports

Our LMS lets you keep track of the costs and results of your company's training plan, as well as the skills acquired by your staff.

By the end of the year, you'll have all the necessary data and metrics to optimize and correct your learning programs.
