Digitalize your recruiting processes

Manage the personnel recruitment and selection processes in a digital and GDPR compliant environment, increasing efficiency and effectiveness.

Improve your employer branding

We create a professional career site for your company, a crucial element of the employer branding strategy.

Through the career site, you will be able to publish vacancies, receive spontaneous applications, and communicate valuable information such as benefits, corporate culture, and career paths offered by your enterprise.

Give your listings maximum visibility

Create job ads directly on the platform using the text editor and saved templates and publish them instantly across multiple job boards and social networks.

Our multiposting system also allows you to publish vacancies on LinkedIn (available with both free and paid membership plans) and activate sponsorships on job boards such as Indeed and Monster.

Build your talent database

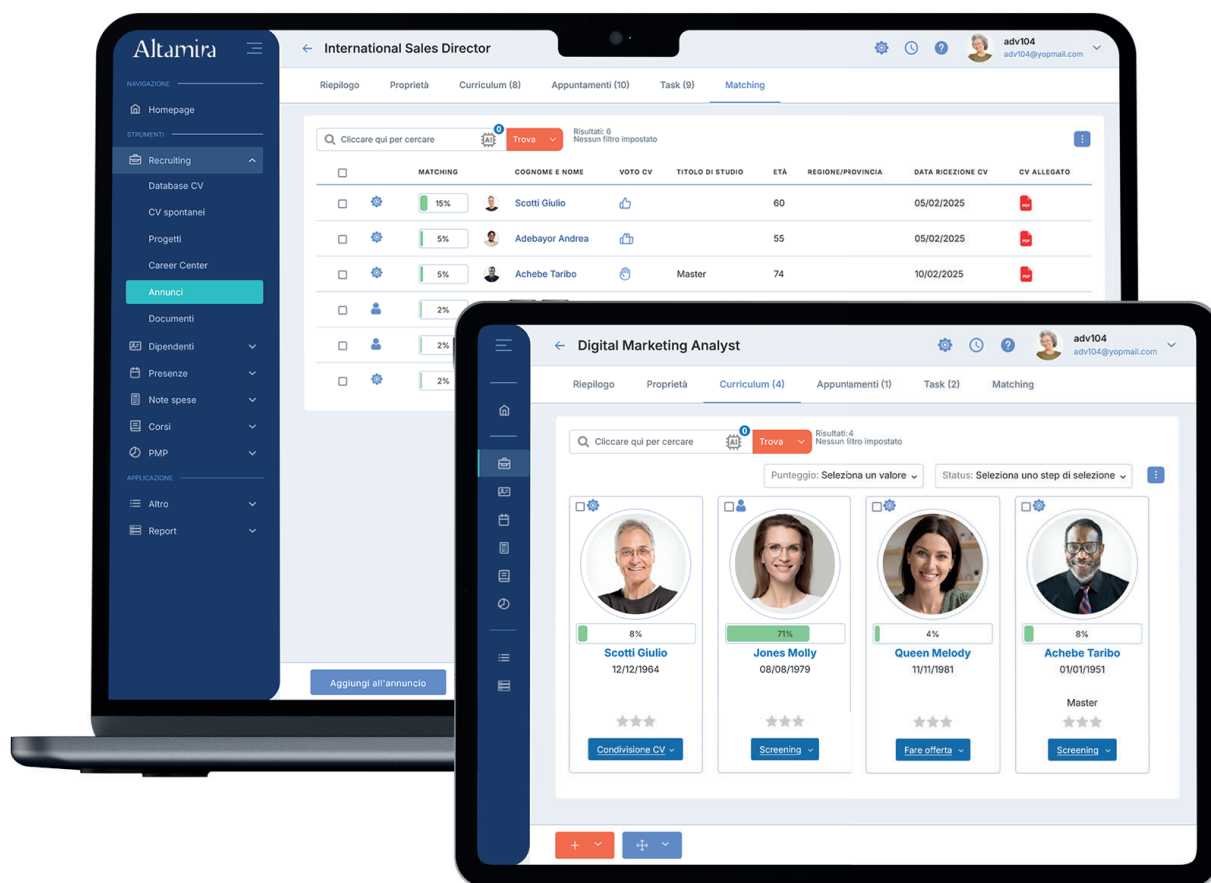

Profiles that apply for open positions will be stored and cataloged in your company's digital database, allowing you to build a pool of candidates for present and future needs.

Every interaction with the candidate is tracked, allowing the company to build a real relationship with the potential employee. At the same time, the advanced search tool quickly identifies the profiles with the desired characteristics.

Streamline your selection process

Our flexible and powerful digital workflow recreates your selection process, allowing you to effortlessly move candidates along the recruitment pipeline, grouping them by application stage.

The same system allows you to send communications and organize activities and interviews, automatically or manually.

Communicate with candidates and hiring managers

Altamira Recruiting allows you to communicate with candidates and organize different activities directly from the platform, such as killer questions, interviews, or video interviews on demand.

External users can also be involved in the process: hiring managers can, for instance, share a list of profiles with a manager for evaluation and feedback.

Organize the selection process into projects

With projects, candidate sourcing is no longer restricted to a single job offer, allowing you to compare and review CVs from multiple open vacancies and the existing database.

With this feature, the selection process starts before the job ad is even published, allowing companies to browse their existing pool of candidates while keeping the project active, or creating a shortlist of suitable prospects for a recurrently vacant position.

Automatically evaluate resumes

The automated CV evaluation system helps you identify the most appropriate candidates in a matter of seconds, ranking their profiles from most to least suitable according to the chosen set of parameters; this is a crucial tool to navigate hundreds of applications!

Track KPIs and statistics

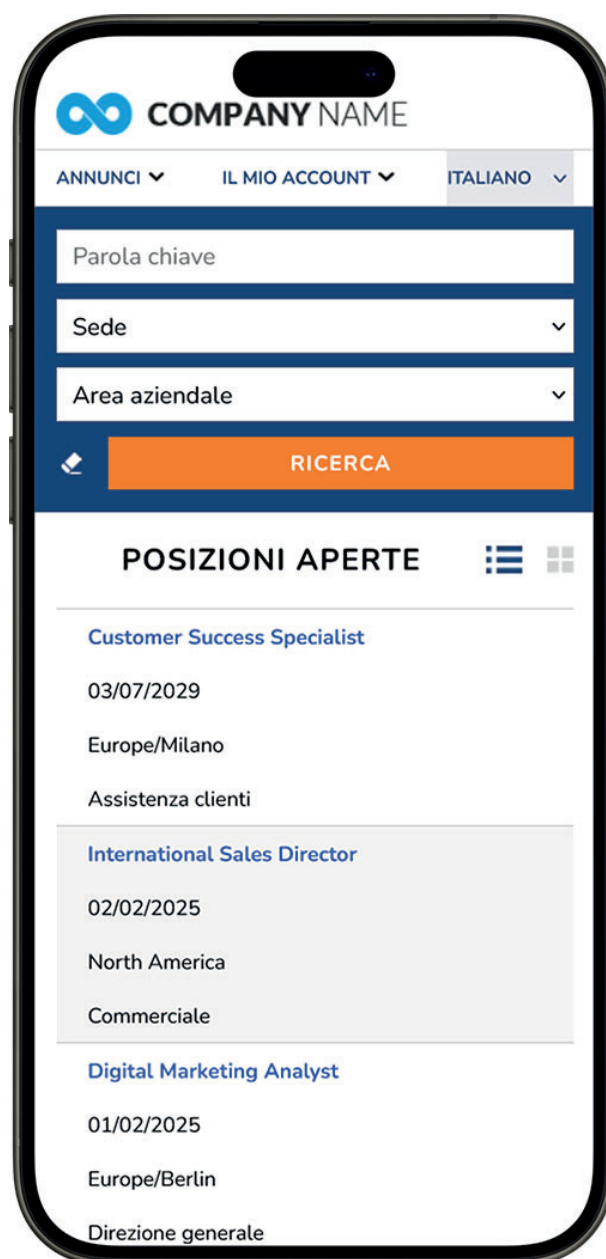

Analyze your database and keep track of the recruitment schedule with the reports and informative dashboards provided by Altamira Recruiting.

Not only will you be able to take full advantage of preset reports, but Altamira Recruiting also allows users to create customized charts and analytics that examine the efficiency of your recruiting strategy.

Comply with GDPR

All Altamira Recruiting users are in compliance with GDPR requirements.

The career sites comply with HTTPS standards, while the GDPR console allows you to collect and store candidate consent and to comply with data retention periods. Altamira also provides a standard privacy policy created with the support of privacy experts.
